The Wall-Mounted Van Gogh offers a dual intake system. The controllable primary and secondary air intake provides precise control over airflow for efficient combustion. Air enters the outer box from the top, where it's heated by conduction from the combustion chamber. This heated air is then directed through a controllable vent and over the glass, serving as an air-wash system that keeps the viewing glass crystal clear while delivering preheated air to the combustion chamber.

Designed for simplicity and ease of installation, the Wall-Mounted Van Gogh comes with a sturdy mounting bracket that bolts securely to the wall. The unit is effortlessly hooked onto the bracket, with pitch adjustments easily made via two bolts at the back. Available in both 700 mm and 900 mm sizes, this wall-mounted unit offers flexibility to suit different spaces, combining innovative design with a sleek, modern aesthetic.
